

Corporate Training Delivery Methods

For our corporate training, you have three delivery methods to choose from, however, we recommend the blended learning option, as we believe this method is the most effective.

1. 3 - 5 Day Intense Workshops

These intense workshops are delivered over a period of 3 -5 days, the duration depends on the experience level of the team to be trained. The team will be assessed either through a simple test to be delivered before training commences or through an interview with a representative of the company.

Given our pursuit of quality service, we do offer online support for the month after the training has commenced giving the trained individuals an opportunity to reach out for information or support on any current project they are working on.

Note: This approach works best when a team need to upskill or learn a new skill quickly.

2. Blended Learning

This method delivered over a period 2 weeks and is broken down as seen below:

In the first 3 days, new concepts are introduced to employees.

The next 5 days are used to develop these skills after hours through our online practical tutorials and assessments. In the final two days, the skills of the team are assessed in person both individually and collectively to ensure there are no weak links.

Given our pursuit of quality service, we do offer online support for the month after the training has commenced giving the trained individuals an opportunity to reach out for information or support on any current project they are working on.

Note: This delivery method is perfect for a team looking to learn a new skill and develop competence in this skill.

3. Structured Learnerships

Every business is different and that is why we offer a unique training programme for each and every work environment. Our team takes care of all the heavy lifting to ensure seamless integration of the learners into your workforce.

Upon request our team will draft a unique learnership program that will focus on creating a balance for the learner between their work and the external learning that we will be providing, the key element is flexibility from our side.

The program seeks to maximise efficiency by:

- Balancing work-training for the learner
- Providing additional training material where necessary and possible to meet business needs
- Defining expected outcomes and timelines

Programs get final approval from relevant stakeholders and are subject to change to meet business needs. Our learnership programs are unique in delivery and highly successful. This delivery method is for businesses that are looking to rapidly upskill graduates.
